More Brokers As Acceptance Grows

Travel brokers have moved from the fringe to the forefront of the New Zealand trade distribution, as an increasing number of consultants opt for the flexibility and security being a broker offers.

"We estimate broker numbers will grow 10% per annum over the next 10 years. This represents big numbers," says NZ Travel Brokers director Guy Flynn. "Consequently, the travel broker space will be a significant sector of retail distribution, if not already."

In the past brokers weren't widely accepted or understood by the wider retail sector and the suppliers, but Flynn says that has now changed. "It had to, there's still work to be done, but we are heading in the right direction."

Flynn says sales are growing strongly across the brand, which last week won the best broker group in the TAANZ NTIAs for the second year running. "It's great. This encourages people to become a broker, plus they get all of the benefits that come with being a broker like lifestyle, satisfaction, control and rewards."

... Relationships Key

Brokers are also getting noticed by major suppliers in this market, with Air New Zealand chief commercial officer Cam Wallace acknowledging the exponential growth of brokers locally. "Broking is the fastest growing area in the traditional travel agency sector, and they're also a very cost effective way of getting people into the industry, and getting mothers, and fathers, back into the workforce," he says. "Importantly it also provides opportunities for a continuation of service, where the consultant is the unique selling point...sometimes the relationship with the client is bigger than the brand."

... Broking Future

Flynn has welcomed the formation of the TAANZ Broker sub-committee. "It is an extremely positive step toward getting the progress we think is required in our sector. We need the support of TAANZ and its members." In addition he says the sector needs to focus on ability of brokers to promote themselves freely in line with TAANZ goals, while maintaining quality and security.

"We want a fair and even playing field amongst all members of the retail travel sector," says Flynn. "There are some specific challenges that need to be worked through, like where a broker can work from and security. We will get there."

The broking sector needs to work together to keep raising the bar moving forward, adds Flynn. "We need our brokers to be able to work effectively and profitably."

TAANZ On Brokers

NZ Travel Brokers founder Steve Lee was the recipient of the TAANZ NTIA lifetime achievement award last Fri—and TAANZ boss Andrew Olsen says the award, in part, acknowledges the growing influence of travel brokers. To that end TAANZ is looking to work more closely with Kiwi brokers.

TAANZ had a draft proposal of a change to rule 12 at the upcoming AGM but says that proposal has been suspended, with a moratorium of 12 months put in place to discuss the broker channel with TAANZ members involved in broker business.

"The future of the broker channel is important to TAANZ and the engagement of our members is the first step to determining what this might look like and what changes might be made to TAANZ rules to accommodate," says Olsen. "We have a solid agenda and terms of reference for the meeting and look forward to some robust discussion on these important matters."

US Parks Boost

The Obama Administration has proposed a new public-private Centennial Challenge Fund to address critical funding priorities for US National Parks, says the US Travel Association. "Our national parks reflect America's heritage and include some of the most breath-taking locations in the world. Furthermore, national parks provide a vital economic anchor for communities in every corner of the country," says USTA boss Roger Dow. "We got an unpleasant glimpse of what life would be like without our national parks two years ago, when they were closed by the federal government shutdown and the economy lost USD152 million per day in spending by visitors. National parks are treasures that must be supported and sustained for all time, and the Centennial Challenge Fund would be an innovative pathway for achieving just that."

In the background, there is a sandy beach, turquoise ocean waves, and a forested hillside under a clear sky with the sun low on the horizon. ### Creepy New Tours

For clients looking for a little adventure in their next Hawaiian break—Oahu Ghost Tours has just launched a new option—the Myths and Legends of Waikiki.

The company says the area is full of haunted hot spots 'and unexplained and creepy events, some that will make your skin crawl'.

"Waikiki is more than just fun and tourists," says the company. "It also has a very dark side. Our guides take you on an almost two hour walking tour of these sites to share the creepy stories associated with them."

The two-hour walking tour (which includes a walk along the famed Waikiki Beach) leaves from the Hilton Hawaiian Village on a Mon night and is USD31, adults. Groups are limited to 14 people. See oahughosttours.com

HNL Entry Kiosks

Honolulu Airport is reportedly planning to install machines to cut down on wait times for international visitors arriving at the airport. Passengers currently wait 20-30 minutes on average at immigration, and the machines would cut the wait time by 10 minutes, say reports. Passengers scan their passports and fingerprints at the machines.

Waikiki's New Rooftop Club

Waikiki now boasts a new hip night spot, following the opening of Sky Waikiki last weekend.

The roof top deck, located just under the revolving restaurant on Kalakaua Ave, is an open-air night club and lounge.

Visitors can dine or sip cocktails with the circular deck linking the lounge to the club, offering views over Waikiki from Diamond head right down the strip. It's home to three bars, there's a giant video wall, a fireplace, DJ booth and there's nothing else quite like it in Waikiki.

As well as a full dinner menu and bar—signature cocktails to recommend include the Iolani Cooler.

However, warn clients this is not the place to watch the sunset, due to the buildings in the way. Details, see skywaikiki.com
